- Previously owned and looked after by Ferrari specialist Terry Hoyle who sold it to the vendor
 - Present ownership since 2013
 - Comprehensive service history
 - Described as good or very good overall
- Supplied new by Maranello Concessionaires and previously owned and looked after by Ferrari specialist Terry Hoyle, who sold it to the vendor, this 412 has been in the present ownership since 2013 and comes with a comprehensive service history. Displaying some 87,900 miles it is said to have been regularly serviced and pampered, having an "excellent" body, Chiaro Blue metallic paintwork, V12 engine and automatic transmission with "very good" Magnolia hide interior. Offered with a current MoT to the end of August, this handsome front-engined V12 Ferrari represents excellent value for money in today's market when compared to many of its competitors.

Launched at the 1985 Geneva Motor Show, the Ferrari 412i was recognisable via its colour-coded bumpers, matt black chin spoiler, raised boot-line and 'flat' five-spoke alloy wheels. Up-rated with new electrically-operated front seats, the grand tourer's revamped interior also sported re-profiled headrests and an improved air-conditioning system. Reputedly capable of 155mph and 0-60mph in 6.4 seconds, a mere 576 are thought to have left the Maranello factory during the model's four-year production run.
