The BMW E36 was the third generation of the '3' Series compact executive cars produced by BMW. Manufactured from 1990 to 2000 the initial models were of the four-door sedan body style, followed by the coupe, convertible, touring, and compact body styles in later years. The biggest change technically from the predecessor- apart from that sleek new styling - was the fitment of a new independent rear suspension set-up, known as the Z-axle. It was a multilink set-up, which helped maintain the 3-Series' position as the market sector's best handling car. The E36 experienced enormous success in the market and laid strong foundations for any future 3 series to come and the E36 was named in Car and Driver Magazine's '10 Best Cars' list.
